CLIMATIC CONDITIONS AND CRUELTY.

WEXPLANATION OF THE ALLEGED MIS-CONDUCT OF AMERICANS IN THE PHILIPINES.

General Nelson A. Miles, Commander-in-Chief of the United States Army while in the Philippines, recently made what has passed for an investigation into a long series of charges of cruelty toward natives and allegations of other kinds of misconduct on the part of American officers and soldiers. Among the charges against the American army in the Philippires contained in his report of his investigations are the following: That natives were subjected to the "water cure," which in some cases proved fatal; that natives were shot when they refused to act as guides; that natives were confined in such crowded quarters that some died from suffocation; and that in one instance two natives were whipped to death. Writing as one who has spent two years in the Philippines as a newspaper correspondent, during which time he was almost continuously at the front, Mr. F. Coleman says in the  $P_nM_nG$ . I saw, personally, something of the "creetty and mis-onduct" which Gene at Miles investigated recently. To begin with, of the goodly fund of star: fing stories which emanate from a campaign. whether they be' tales of misconduct, or o valoue, a ster ain percentage will be found, i carefully investigated, to be atterly untrue, and in almo t every instance the balance will be found to be very much exaggerated. The most notable incidents of cruelty and bravery alike are, on the other hand, frequently un reported. I saw certain excesses in the Philippines during the first year and a half of the insurrection; but in most instances, if not in all, they were actuated by what seemed the chief actors in the war-drama, as well as to various mere onlookers like myself, to be very good reasons indeed. It is just this point which brings forward the question of climatic influence. Those present when excesses occur red minimised the irregularity, or, if you will, barbarity, of the proceedings, and why? For two reasons. Life with an army in war time is not an existence which engenders refinement, particularly life with an army which is campaigning ontside the confines of civilization. War always develops some of the worst features in the nature of the genus home, he he white, black, yellow, for red. Added to the deteriorating influence of war in general, the soldier of an army of white men operating in a tropical climate is confronted by another degenerating force. This has in the very climate itself. Certain men under my observation in the Philippines fell from a higher and better moral type, for the time being, to a lower one, and suffered from a partial decay in certain qualities, as a result of the nervous, restless existence which had fallen

There may be no dividing line between cruelties that are inflicted because of the dread influence of war and cruelties that may be attributed to climatic conditions, but each degenerating influence plays a powerful part-That war brutalizes men is well known. That tropical climates have some effect in that direction will one day be equally well recognized: One has but to witness the long succession, of cases of insanity, nostalgia, and kindred ills that have assailed the United States army in the Philippines to gain some realization of the host of unseen, and almost unknown, foes that have combined, forces with the more tangible illnesses of the body and the kinder fate of the fortunes of actual war. belive the American army officer to be one of the finest products of military history, and have watched him campaign throughout the Spanish-American war, the Philippine insurrection, and the last Chinese war. Almost as much might be said for the American soldier. Yet have seen American officers and American soldiers of a very fine type engaged in filling up an uncommunicative Filipino with pure spring water, by means of a funnel placed in his mouth, with never a thought as to whether or not they were indulging in cruelty. I re member distinctly the first time I ever saw the 'water cure," as it was called. The surgeon with the party assured me that no injury to the native would result, and I confess I was as little shocked as any one at the pe-formance, and a frankly pleased with the result, which was the ultimate divulgation by the rascally native of which we were in search. That any officer would crowd prisoners so as to actually suffocate some of them, and do so wittingly or intentionally, I do not believe. That natives were shot when they refused to act as guides sounds quite as bad, if not worse. Yet the conditions under which the fighting was going on at the time must be taken into consideration before passing judgment on any such case.

Some time in the fore part of the year 1899 Aguinaldo, who was then ostensibly at the head of the insurrection in the Philippines, issued proclamations counselling his people to abandon open fighting and engage in a guerilla warfare pure and simple. The laws of war, by which the American army is guided, provide for special treatment of just such combatants as Aguinaldo advised his foll wers to become.

General Order No. 100 of the rules of war of the American army is a comprehensive set of rules for the special benefit of such Filipinos as had decided to be peaceable agriculturists when it suited them and effective combatants when circumstances seemed to be favourable to that course. Under its various clauses and provisions thousands of Filipinos who are probably alive and well to-day could have been treated summarily as highway robbers and pirates," and could "expect no quarter," as they were "not entitled to the privileges of the prisoner of war," and "death" was "the penalty of their offence." I have known of summary executions in the Philippines, but in every instance, save one, in which I was familiar with the facts of the case, I am certain the culprit thoroughly deserved his fate. I would not to greatly susprised to hear that certain sum. ] mary executions took place in the islands which were unnecessary, if most or all of these cases, without doubt, the effect of the climatic influence on those whose duty it was to carefully weigh the ethics of the case was greatly, if not entirely, responsible for the occurrence of the event. With regard to the mention in General Miles's report of two deaths from whipping, was an eye-witness of an instance of native whipping in the Philippines which was, curiously enough, the identical case. An American officer turned over certain insurgent prisoners to the local native authorities, who were conducting their own municipal government under the general direction of the commanding officer of the American troops in that district. The municipal authorities promptly instituted Spanish methods of torture in the form of a whipping post to extort information from the prisoners. I visited the scene of the whipping and saw a sight I shall never forget. Knowing the absolute power of the commanding officer in his own district, I said nothing there, but surriedly returned to headquarters at Manila.

The general efficer in command of the division in which the whipping took place and the Governor-Generals of the islands owere both personal friends of mine, and to them I went with the story. While I am confident that both of them thought I exaggerated the horror of the scene I described, although it would hardly have been possible for me to have done so, they took immediate steps to have any such practices stopped for good and all. The most peculiar part of the whole business was the manner in which the commanding officer of the district took the news of my complaint. He had never taken the trouble to investigate the whipping-chamber and its horrors personally. He hated treacherous, lying natives cordially, and probably thought no treatment too bad for them. When he received the news that I had complained, however, he could not understand it. His own conscience did not bother him. He had done no wrong in his own eyes. Consequently, he thought himself most unjustly prosecuted.

Subsequently I met a man who had known that officer since his childhood. He said the officer was as mild and gentle a boy and young man as could be, found anywhere. We were discussing the subject and its peculiar phases when a major-surgeon in the party interrupted us. "It's easy enough to explain," said he. * "bat officer is merely another victim of the sinful climate of these inlands. His perspective is all wrong,"

RECORD MOUNTAIN CLIMB.

THE CHAMPION A LADY.

Miss Elizabeth Tait, who holds the Gold Medal of Ben Nevis for a fine performance on that difficult mountain, has attracted widespread interest as a climber.

Modestly disclaiming exceptional genius Miss Tait said, in accounting for her feat, "I was in the pink of condition then. I live at Loch. Treig, Corrom, Inverness, N.B. Dr.

My brother-in-law, with whom I reside, and who has been greatly benefited by using them, recommended me to try the pills named. was very dubious of any good result, but after about a week I became aware of a decided improvement in my health, and before I had finished the second box -which was all I took -1 was entirely free of the troublesome disease. am now in excellent health, and it is not unusual for me to walk twelve miles in a day.

The pills are not purgative, but, on the contrary, strengthening." Either unh-althy blood or weakness will cause the skin to break out, poison trying to find its way from the system. Purifying and strengthening as they are, Dr. Williams' pink pills for pale people have cured many cases of eczema and chronic erysipelas which nothing else would touch. Anæmia, consumption, kidney disorders, rheumatism, and the frequent miseries of womankind also yield to them. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills may be obtained of most European chemists and drug stores. All who suffer from weakness or lack of energy, whether in man or woman, will do well to follow the same lead is the Lady Champion of Ben Nevis. Miss Tait is twenty-eight years

It was brought against the Opinion, a newspaper which had attacked certain officers in Laos, an up-country province in Cochin-China for putting a rising among the natives down with a severity which bordered upon cruelty. The evidence led brought out these circumstances as well as the fact that the officers, in doing so, had merely carried out the instructions of their superior officer, now dead. For the defence it was urged that the Opinion did not defame the two officers but merely showed up a system of the government which allowed such atrocities. The jury returned a verdict of acquittal.

NEW TERRITORIES RENT RECOVERY ORDINANCE.

The Ait mey-General moved the first reading of a Bill entitled An Ordinance to the Western district. repeal The New Territories Rent Recovery Ordinance. The objects and reasons state:-

the health and sanitary condition of the Colony "The o ject of this Ordinance is to provide for the hearing and determining of claims to | fixtures for the Victoria Hespital for Women tent in the New Territories. By Ordinance 14 of 1902, it was provided that such claims should be heard and determined by the Land Court established under Ordinance 18 of 1900. That Court, however, was intended when it was constituted to be a Court for settling claims to land in New Territories and for establishing titles to land therein and for no other purpose.

It was not intended, and it is not desired, that the Land Court shall continue to exist after it has done its work of settling titles to land. The Land Court, in short, is a Lands Titles Court and that alone; and will be dissolved as soon as its work of settling titles is

This Ordinance therefore repeals Ordinance | the shroffs at $ 80 per annum from 5th May to 14 of 1902, which declares that all claims to rent in respect of land in the New Territories shall be heard and determined by the Land Court, and provides in lieu thereof that rent in the New Terr tories is to be recovered before the Supreme. Court when the rent claimed exceeds $200 and before a Magistrate when the um claimed does not exceed that amount.

After consideration and from the experience of the past the Government have come to the conclus on that in the case of claims over $200 he parties should be admitted to the privilege of a hearing in the Supreme Court in its Original or Summary Jurdisdiction according to the amount involved, where the advantage of legal assistance can readily be obtained.

In proceedings before a Magistrate in the New Territories the parties will also be at liberty if they please to retain legal assistance, but as the amount involved in any such case will be necessarily small there will not be the same need for legal assistance."

Of course, there is the usual recourse to the Police Court provided one is disposed at great personal discomfort and attempted revolution. The country is disturbed loss of time to drag the man before a Magistrate. And in the event of a conviction of a month or two what deterrent effect has the sentence on such a character? There is a witty saying amongst the gentry which translated into English, means "going to gaol is like sitting in a flower garden." The fact is English law is too lenient for these scums and Let us now glance at the condition of how such characters were treated by the the last century. Alexandria then possessed three daughters who are prostrated by the news treaty is general and the conditions are in many | a Chief of Police by name Mustapha: Mustapha | of the awful t agedy. ways ripe for a revolution. The general gov- | Capitan was an Albanian who "turned Tu-k" and in choosing the career of a policeman he appeared to have followed the promptings of genius, for never before or since was there such a vigorous and astute personality at the head of the service in Alexandria. He was not much to look at and was rarely seen in uniform; a shabby suit of ready-made clothes concealing a shirt of chain mail was his ordinary attire, he wore the official red fez, and went about on a donkey-visiting the police posts and perambifating the town at all hours of the night and day. It was no joke to be chief of Folice in those days in Alexandria which was the refuse of all the scum of the Mediterranean. Gamblers and rogues shot and stabbed each other in open day in the streets, and as the Egyptian Government had no criminal jurisdiction over foreigners, they could only be imprisoned, but not capitally punished and thus the jails would at times become inconveniently full. At first they were deported at the cost of the Egyptian Government and dumped on Greek or other territory without; piastre. Of course this expenditure was not repaid, and may perhaps have been objected to by the Egyptian Government. However, Mestapha was a man of resource, and he found a way to get rid of his criminals without paying their passage. He would arrange with one of the half-decked two-masted fruit ships that frequented the port to carry a certain number of men across the water and to take them on board at night. A boat-load of the prisoners heavily chained would leave the quay at the appointed time generally after midnight, and as the load was always excessive, the boat was always swamped; the crew escaped by swimming and the man in chains were drowned. The captain of the ship waiting out in the harbour would learn next day of the 'accident" and would depa with ballast. The Consuls concerned were glad to be rid of troublesome and dangerous subjects. So, Mustapha Capitan was a terror to evil doers, and he had the best of al reason for wearing a mail shirt, for his life was frequently attempted. He was reported to be able to go almost without sleep, his favourite mode of rest being to sit in any corner of curacol (police office) and close his eyes for twenty minutes. And Ismail? The Khedive liked prompt and simple measures. It is alleged of him that he would sometimes collect a few hundreds of the low Greeks who formed the scum of Alexandria, put them on board ship and send them to sea, with orders to the crew to bore holes in the hull and then escape. Some day when the inner harbour of Alexandri v requires deepening, the dredgers will bring up a lot of old iron which it will not be difficult to i entify in conn ction with the stories of Ismail the Khedive and Mustapha his Capitan. Oh! for the shades of these two worthies. This is an age of surprises, Mr. Editor, and if ever the local authorities feel at all inclined to adopt either of the above named methods, I undertake to contribute my quota (at great perso al inconvenience) of freight or cargoand ask no awkward q estions -- Yours, etc.,

THE TRAGIC DEATH OF SHANG. HAI STOCKBROKER.

At the inquest held on the body of the late Mr. R. M. Campbell, who shot himself at Shanghai on Wednesday the following letter, found on the deceased, was read:- Get Dr. McLeod if you can at once. Tell him to go to my house. If you telephone to my house, No. 292, only say I have met with an accident; but try and get Dr. McLeod to go out at first. Do not telephone if you can help. I do not want the news to burst on them." A verdict of suicide whilst of unsound mind was returned The Shanghai Press of the 18th inst. says :-The report was current during yesterday and last hight that Mr. Campbell's rash act was the result of speculation in the share market the past two months, when it is said, he lost a half million of dollars. These rumours, however, are discredited by many for the reason that Mr. Campbell was a most substantial business man, not given to wild speculation or get-rich-quick schemes. He has been identified with the business and social life of the Settlement for many years and served in many capacities with honour to himself and with credit to the authorities in the latter years of the seventies of | community. SUCCESSFUL PLAGUE PREVEN. TION WORK IN FORMOSA.

In view of the recent report to the Hongkong Sanitary Board it is interesting to read the following in the Kobe Herald :--

The total number of bubonic plague cases in Formosa from the date of the first outbreak this year to the end of last month is 604, of which 544 cases proved fatal. The figures reveal a decrease of about 50 per cent, compared to the corresponding period of last year. ne remarkable feature this year is that Tainan district, which was known as a centre of the epidemic last year, has not had a single case. There may be various reasons for this but the principal one is believed to be that vigorous measures were taken to exterminate rats. As the drains have been improved and other sanitary measures taken it is evident that the authorities have done everything they could to stamp out the disease. It should be noted too that the rainfall this year was less than last year's. The Formosan authorities are determined to enforce the most stringent preventive measures, in accordance with the advice of Dr. Takagi, Chief of the Taipeh Hospital. They hope to stamp out the epidemic completely in the course of five or

Speaking of the disposition to be made of the Spanish war ships sunk by the American Navy in Cavite bay some of which have already been raised and the two others ready for recovery, an influential member of the Philippine Wrecking Company who is doing the work, having undertaken it on a purely specula tive business basis, said recently:

"We are doing exceedingly well, thanks to the good work performed by Captain Garry and his crew and there can be no doubt but that the Company will not a handsome profit

The Raina Christina, the first ship raised by Captain Garry, has been thoroughly overhauled Her fourteen small bullet holes have been patched substantially and she has been painted inside and outside so that she looks and is most valuable vessel now. Negotiations are pending to sell the Reina Christina to the Civil Government to be used as a collier. On account of her storage, and carrying

The Lezo, a small gunboat, will receive the attention of Captain Garry as soon as he gets through with the job of lifting that Naval Water-boat out of the riverbed and there will be but little trouble in getting her affoat once more. The beached Isla de Mindanao will also be illated by the company and the rest of ] the Spanish fleet not being worth recovering will be dynamited so as to be no longer a menace to navigation."

In this connection (says the Manila Times) it may be stated that the Philippine Wrecking ompany has added the steamer Sum Shur, lately a chartered U.S. transport ship, to her fleet and will at once proceed to equip her as a first up-to-date wrecker.
